Perficient Secures New Acquisition Financing

AUSTIN, Texas--(BUSINESS WIRE)—June 1, 2004--Perficient, Inc. (NASDAQ:PRFT - News), a leading eBusiness solutions provider in the central United States, today announced a new acquisition credit facility with Silicon Valley Bank. Funds drawn under the facility, which is subject to completion of legal documents, will be used to finance the cash portion of accretive acquisitions, pursuant to Perficient's previously announced acquisition program. The new facility increases the total size of the company's Silicon Valley Bank credit facility from $6 million to $10 million. Perficient currently has $0 drawn against its credit facility.

"The availability of this additional, well-priced capital will enable Perficient to aggressively execute against our target of becoming a $100 million IT services provider by the end of 2006," said chairman and chief executive officer Jack McDonald.

"Perficient has demonstrated an ability to locate, execute and integrate accretive acquisitions and has articulated a sound strategy for becoming a leading e-business solutions provider in the central U.S.," said Stuart Edwards, senior vice president, Silicon Valley Bank. "We are pleased to make this additional capital available and expand the breadth of our partnership."
